

Ambassade Orchestra Vienna

an ensemble of the Vienna Symphony Orchestra

Development

„I am really surprised how this project developed”, says Michael Buchmann, a member of the Vienna Symphony Orchestra, in an interview. “We just wanted to found a small, courageous, and unconventional orchestra and suddenly we were on tour in Dubai with one of the most famous tenors in the world, José Carreras”.

The story of the “Young Wilds of the Vienna Symphony Orchestra” (authored by Josef Rietveld, Kurier, Newspaper) started during the Johann Strauss Anniversary year of 1999.

Michael Buchmann and Alexander Kaspar, manager of the ensemble, had the idea to emphasize the entertaining element of classical music in an informal, but highly professional style.

“... and because of that we founded the Ambassade Orchestra Vienna, recorded a CD- Leichtes Blut – and after a couple of concerts in Austria, we went on tour to South America.”

What awaited the Ambassade Orchestra Vienna there was indescribable.

Ambassade Orchestra Vienna

Conditions comparable to the Rolling Stones & an Airplane Crash

Up to 12,000 people attended each concert; the audience cheered wildly, and for hours the orchestra had to write autographs and even items the musicians threw away, got retrieved by fans as souvenirs. In South America, the orchestra experienced conditions similar to the celebrity status of the Rolling Stones. Because of the huge interest from the people of Uruguay in the orchestra, television stations and newspapers reported daily on the artists' private life and recorded the enormous enthusiasm of the audience during the 24 open air concerts. Also, the ORF (the largest Austrian television station) accompanied the orchestra through Uruguay. The repertoire stretched from Mozart and Brahms to the Strauß family. But the highlights of the program were always the tango “La Cumparsita” and the self-composed piece “Uruguay”.

There was a special newspaper headline due to a domestic flight. A couple of minutes after the musicians left the airplane at the Salto/Uruguay Airport the plane exploded and was completely destroyed. Soon wild speculations were made as to the reason of the explosion and for the following concerts the orchestra was escorted by the police.

José Carreras

With José Carreras in Dubai

Dubai is known as a superlative city. Because of this, it is not surprising that a huge open air stage would be built up in “Nad Al Sheba”, the biggest horse and camel racetrack of the world, and the Ambassade Orchestra Vienna would be flown in to support one of the most famous tenors in the world, José Carreras.

The work with José Carreras was incredible. It was not necessary to have any special affects, actors, or additions to his performance. His charisma alone, perfectly complimented by the Ambassade Orchestra Vienna, was enough to overwhelm the audience.

The result were many concerts in the United Arabic Emirates and especially the CD-production “Mediterranean Passion / José Carreras and Ambassade Orchestra Vienna” that has been released in autumn 2008.

Charlie Chaplin in the Vienna Konzerthaus

With an extraordinary movie evening, the Ambassade Orchestra Vienna had an additional highlight to add to their repertoire. In March 2003, the orchestra played live with conductor Helmut Imig the movie soundtrack of “The Kid” and “The Idle Class” which was written by Chaplin.

“I tried to compose elegant and romantic music to give my comedies contradictory and emotional touches,” said Chaplin, for whom soundtracks where more than just background music.

“Because of the loose and exact intonations of the perfectly arranged orchestra, this movie evening became an elated and moving nostalgic event. Two masterpieces of the silent films were performed and it was honoured by lots of strong applause.” (Critic, Thomas Fanta, Wiener Zeitung, Newspaper).

The audience was enthusiastic and all performances were sold out.

The Superman-Suite in Monte Carlo

Not only Formula 1 car engines were roaring in Monte Carlo.

At the Red Bull Driver's Party on Saturday night before the Grand Prix in Monaco, the Ambassade Orchestra Vienna with their conductor Christian Kolonovits performed for celebrities such as Kevin Spacey, George Lukas, Formula 1 pilot David Coulthard and Torro Rosso owner Gerhard Berger.

Befitting the presentation of the new Superman movie, the Superman-Suite sounded all over the harbour of Monte Carlo.

Perhaps that "gave Wings" to the Red Bull pilot, since the next day David Coulthard made the first podium place for the Red Bull Racing Team.

At Work for a Good Cause

The musicians of the Ambassade Orchestra are always at work for a good cause. This started on September 28, 1999, with a charity concert for "Care Austria" in the Vienna Art History Museum.

Together with the funk band, "Hot Pants Road Club", the charity CD "Live for the Moment" was recorded and performed at the opening of the "Live Ball '02" in front of 1.000's of fans at the Vienna Rathausplatz. A double concert with our colleagues of the Corso Wien ensemble was lots of fun and performed for the foundation "Save St. Stephan's Cathedral".

In December 2003, an auction of paintings for the Make a Wish Foundation was musically supported by the Ambassade Orchestra Vienna.

More charity concerts followed, for example, the Waris Dirie Foundation, Flora (Viennese Women Against Breast Cancer), victims of the Tsunami ...

die Goldene CD

The first Golden CD for the Ambassade Orchestra Vienna

Following the sold out concert at Vienna's Musikverein on April, 24th 2006, Christian Kolonovits the producer of the CD "Ambros sings Moser", presents the golden CD to the representatives of the orchestra, Peter Steinhardt, Michael Buchmann and Alexander Kaspar, the producer of the new DVD Rudi Dolezal and the "godfather of Austropop" Wolfgang Ambros.

The idea originated from the trumpet player of the Ambassade Orchestra Vienna Peter Steinhardt, who is, as he says, the biggest Hans Moser fan worldwide. "Instead of going to school, I preferred spending my mornings with a bunch of older ladies at the Bellaria cinema watching those old movies."

"Two worlds collided and created a third, and look, that was good, very good indeed!" [Hannes Höttl]

Ch. Kolonovits, R. Dolezal, M. Buchmann, W. Ambros, P. Steinhardt, A. Kaspar

"I was captivated. A fabulous Ambassade Orchestra Vienna, led by its conductor Christian Kolonovits accompanied Wolfgang Ambros, and was swinging, elegant and sensitive. Wolfgang Ambros is an obliging and great interpreter, as well or maybe especially for the traditional Viennese songs." [Herbert Zotti, Wr. Volksliedwerk]

Meanwhile many concerts took place, the CD "Ambros singt Moser" reached platinum status and "Ambros singt Moser die 2te" reached gold. For weeks the live DVD "Ambros singt Moser" was on top of the austrian DVD charts.

Japan-Tour

Japan-Tour

Besides the sold out concerts in Tokyo and Kyoto the Ambassade Orchestra Vienna had the exceptional honor to perform at Kamigamo-Jinja shrine. To enter this shrine in shoes was until now only allowed to the emperor and to the musicians of the Ambassade Orchestra.

Concertmaster of this tour was Mag. Anton Sorokow, first concertmaster of the Vienna Symphony Orchestra.

He is 1st price winner of the Beethoven audition in the Czech Republic in 1994, 1st price winner of the Stephanie-Hohl-Audition Vienna and of the Romano-Romanini-Audition in Brescia, only to name a few. Anton Sorokow plays on a Giuseppe Guarneri del Gesù "Ex Sorkin" violin, from the year 1731 with an insurance value of € 4 Mio.

Rockmusic

Japanese Rock music

One of the highlights of 2007 was definitely the six days trip to Tokyo and Yokohama. Two sold out concerts in front of 5000 people each were live recorded. The rock band Quruli, consisting of seven musicians was supported by the Ambassade Orchestra Vienna. The recordings were done in cooperation with the company SCI. Quruli is since more than ten years one of the most successful Japanese Rock formations and a DVD and CD of these unforgettable performances has been released in 2008.

Peter and the wolf

One of the big concerns of the Ambassade Orchestra Vienna is to bring classical music closer to the youth. On this account the Ambassade Orchestra Vienna decided to produce a CD with classical compositions appropriate for children.

Willi Weitzel

In collaboration with Willi Weitzel, the Orchestra recorded Sergej Prokofiev's musical fairy tale "Peter and the wolf", which was released in 2010. Willi Weitzel was the talk master of the German kids show "Willi wills wissen" and was therefore awarded the Bavarian Television Award as well as other TV prizes. Additionally to the CD, a special DVD is included in the "Peter and the Wolf-Box", which contains two short films. One deals with the question how a musical CD is produced and the other one is a kind of a music lesson, explaining the various instruments used in the composition to children.

Sarah Brightman

Another highlight of the Ambassade Orchestra Vienna was the cooperation with Sarah Brightman. In January 2008 the DVD "Sarah Brightman – Symphony" with the director Hannes Rossacher was produced at Saint Stephan's Cathedral, Vienna. Sarah Brightman is known for her musical variety, her biggest hit "Time To Say Goodbye" together with Andrea Bocelli was on top of all European charts and made it in the Guinness Book of Records as the most sold hit single in Germany.

Viennese Musikverein

Lidia Baich und Matthias Fletzberger

In cooperation with some of the best known international event agencies, the Ambassade Orchestra Vienna was responsible for the background music during several corporate events. On the occasion of the anniversary of the Allianz insurance company a concert was organized in the Viennese Musikverein. Together with the famous violinist Lidia Baich, Matthias Fletzberger and their band as well as with a choir of 80 singers, the Ambassade Orchestra Vienna gave a fulminant concert where „Carmina Burana“ as well as a specially arranged version of the „Earth Song“ was performed. In addition to the concert several ensembles of the Orchestra played in various other locations in the Musikverein, for example a string trio with electric instruments and a jazz ensemble.

Messe

Messe Wien

Another highlight was a corporate event organized by the OMV, where the Ambassade Orchestra Vienna was invited to perform as well. Not only the stage was especially designed for the orchestra and the choir for this event, moreover three pieces of music very composed only for this special evening. The star guests for the evening were the well known pianovirtuoses Ferhan and Ferzan Önder, who were performing the newly composed „Thank you“ Symphony together with the Ambassade Orchestra Vienna. However not only the concert was laid into the orchestras hands, the Jazz formation of the orchestra was already performing during the cocktail reception and in the lounge and bar area a DJ entertained the guests together with three musicians, all of them members of the orchestra, who were improvising to the DJ music.
